

'The Loch Ness monster? It's an otter. Bigfoot? Just a bear': Meet the 72-year-old magician-turned-paranormal investigator who travels the world probing ghost stories and eerie sightings (well, the truth IS out there)

Site Web Search

- Joe Nickell, 72, is a longtime skeptic and paranormal investigator who's been dubbed the real-life Agent Scully
- Nickell believes paranormal mysteries shouldn't be dismissed but carefully investigated with a view toward solving them
- He uses his experiences as a stage magician and private detective to expose paranormal forgeries and hoaxes
- Since 1995, he's worked with the Center for Inquiry in Buffalo, New York, making him perhaps the world's only full-time salaried paranormal investigator

By JORDAN GASS-POORE FOR DAILYMAIL.COM

PUBLISHED: 08:29 EST, 4 August 2017 | UPDATED: 09:59 EST, 4 August 2017

Share

269 shares

41
View comments

Joe Nickell is 'terrible' at sighting ghosts and has a 'pitiful record' of catching terrestrials.

It's as if they're not real, he says.

Nickell is perhaps the world's only full-time salaried paranormal investigator. He travels around the world conducting field research on everything from monsters and ghosts to psychics and religious phenomena.

People call him a debunker but Nickell is unapologetic about trying to find the truth. He's been investigating hauntings since attending his first séance in 1969 and says he has never come across any evidence that would prove the existence of ghosts.

The Loch Ness monster? It's an otter, he says. Bigfoot? Oh, that's just a bear.

It is, after all, his job to explain away the paranormal.

For more than two decades Joe Nickell (pictured with some unusual drinking buddies) - a former stage magician and detective - has traveled around the world challenging paranormal claims with the Center for Skeptical Inquiry in Buffalo, New York. He's pictured here at a 'Martian' bar in New York City for a 1999 BBC-produced series

FEMAIL TODAY

▶ Pippa Middleton stuns in gray bikini as she joins her mother Carole and brother James with fiancée Alizée Thevenet for a sun-soaked beach day in St. Barts

▶ Brooke Shields, 54, turns back the clock as she flaunts her ripped body in TINY navy blue bikini
The actress took to Instagram

▶ Emily Blunt and John Krasinski have their hands full with daughters Hazel and Violet as they jet back to the US after spending Christmas in London

▶ Alessandra Ambrosio shows off her enviable frame in a pink and grey ombre bikini as she enjoys a day on the beach with her family in Brazil

▶ Derick Dillard claims he and Jill Duggar aren't allowed at her parents' house without her father's permission - and that TLC 'pressured' abuse victim Jill to film

▶ Bag a bargain before 2020! From tech and beauty to toys and fashion, the best of Amazon's year-end deals today
PROMOTED

▶ Jessica Mulroney shares her top pictures of 2019 including a throwback to best friend Meghan Markle's wedding - and taks about 'trolls'

▶ Misha Nonoo, who 'introduced Meghan Markle to Prince Harry', reveals she's expecting her first baby three months after wedding oil heir Mikey Hess

▶ Jennifer Aniston and Adam Sandler's Murder Mystery is Netflix's

TODAY'S
TOP VIDEOS

Nickell (pictured) is perhaps the world's only full-time paranormal investigator. He began to consider himself a skeptic of paranormal claims in 1969 when he attended his first séance as part of a CBC radio special, Houdini in Canada. He's held his own séance since 1996

Nickell points toward scientifically explainable reasons for why people may think they've seen the supernatural. A ghost could be the result of sleep paralysis, the traumatic grief of losing a loved one and the power of suggestion. He has a theory, though, about why people remain fascinated with the paranormal.

'People do have very human needs. They want to believe in wonderful things. When they're in grief, they have trouble coping with that,' said Nickell, who's authored numerous books on the paranormal and served as a character consultant on the 2007 horror movie The Reaping.

His lack of specific credentials – he has a PhD in English from the University of Kentucky – is offset by experience and a broad area of knowledge.

He is frequently asked to comment on paranormal subjects, usually as the 'token skeptic'. He's worked on popular cases like the events that inspired the hit movie The Haunting in Connecticut, which he thinks was made up for media exploitation.

The causes for other 'haunted' houses may not be so nefarious. One person may influence or spread an idea to another, said Nickell, that's why as a hotel or a house becomes thought of as haunted more ghostly encounters are reported.

This was the case for the Mackenzie House in Toronto, where footfalls were heard on the stairs for decades until, in the early 1970s, he investigated and found that they were coming from a late-night cleaning crew in the building next door.

Bigfoot is just one of the myths Nickell disproves for a living. Here he's on an expedition at Bluff Creek in California, the site of an infamous Bigfoot 'sighting'

▶ massive tattoo collection including animals, compass and crossed guns with the slogan 'make em pay'

▶ Chrissy Teigen shares a romantic moment with John Legend before kissing son Miles in the pool on family vacation
Traded the Wyoming snow for the sand

▶ DMX talks about being 'lost' as he takes to the stage in Las Vegas for the first time since checking into rehab to work on his sobriety in October

▶ Tiffany Trump is all smiles while dog sledding in Montana with her mom Marla Maples - before jetting off to the beach ahead

▶ while enjoying fun in the sun in Mexico

▶ Box office catastrophe! Cats could lose $100m for Universal as audiences shun Judi Dench and Taylor Swift CGI flick

▶ Selma Blair laughs with boyfriend David Lyons as they head for coffee together after engagement rumors

▶ Bristol Palin and her newly divorced boyfriend Janson Moore split less than two months after going public with their relationship

▶ Real Housewives Of New Jersey's Jennifer Aydin accuses her mother of lying... after she denies knowing son Steven Altinel was gay in show preview

▶ Jennifer Lopez and Alex Rodriguez wrap up warm to get coffee after casual Christmas
Hustlers star was perfectly dressed for a cool California day

At various haunted inns, many apparitions have turned out to be due to the person experiencing a common 'waking dream'. Nickell 'caught' the 'ghost' of Mackenzie House (pictured) in Toronto during the early 1970s when his investigation discovered the haunted footfalls on the staircase were being caused by nothing more than a late-night cleaning crew in the building next door

Even with this explanation, the Mackenzie House is still considered to be the most haunted house in Toronto.

'Anyone could be fooled by some illusion,' Nickell said.

Questioning the supernatural is important, he said. This maxim speaks to his obsession with unraveling secrets.

Growing up in the Appalachian town of West Liberty, Kentucky, Nickell was a child whose parents indulged his obsessions. When Nickell became interested in magic, his father, a postmaster and amateur magician, taught him some of that he knew. He became an amateur sleuth at the age of eight when his parents bought him a professional fingerprinting kit and he turned a room in his home into a crime lab.

ADVERTISEMENT

THE Heat SEEKER
HOT SAUCE 3 PACK

AMERICAN MADE, VETERAN OWNED.

TODAY'S TOP VIDEOS

As a child, Nickell dreamed of becoming a magician, later an investigator. He dreamed of becoming a lot of things and, at 72, has become most of them. He still counts his heroes as Harry Houdini and other magicians who used their magic talents to expose trickery.

On moving to Toronto in 1968, Nickell (above in an undated photo) renewed his childhood interest in magic and began his career as a magic pitchman in a carnival. His father was an amateur magician and taught him some of the tricks that he knew

Nickell often performed magic tricks and sold magic kits in toy stores, as seen in these photos at Simpson's department store in Toronto. He did his last shows as a professional magician in 1973 because he began work as a private investigator

Nickell's first séance was in 1969 in Toronto for a CBC documentary called Medium in Canada. Despite the medium's pronouncement, he said Houdini was a no-s

▶ Jessica Simpson and Eric Johnson hit the slopes for a double date with sister Ashlee and Evan Ross as both families enjoy trip to Aspen

▶ 'I can't believe I said that': Eddie Murphy says he 'cringes' when he hears his old jokes about gay people from infamous 1983 stand-up special Delirious

▶ Jessica Chastain bundles up in black coat as she sightsees with husband Gian Luca Passi de Preposulo in Venice... and enjoys ride on taxi boat

▶ For ALL the showbiz news on the internet, go to Newzit.com
Amazing new site aggregates all your favorite showbiz sources
SPONSORED

▶ Shakira and her soccer star beau Gerard Piqué cheer on sons Sasha and Milan at soccer practice in Miami
She's appearing with J.Lo at Super Bowl

▶ Ashlyn Harris dons a tuxedo with Umbro socks and Ali Krieger wears a white gown as the soccer stars marry in Miami ceremony

▶ Kim Kardashian posts pic of herself in the makeup chair as the reality TV star plugs her KKW cosmetic line
The mother-of-four shared a snap

▶ Hunky twin brothers, 32, from UK TV show My Big Fat Gypsy Wedding died in 'suicide pact' after cancer and depression battles, family reveals conducted his own séances every Halloween since 1996 at the Center for Inquiry, where he works.

TODAY'S
TOP VIDEOS

SHARE THIS ARTICLE

RELATED ARTICLES

Forget Nessie...it's Ness-ski! Nature lovers spot Loch Ness...

Is this proof the Loch Ness Monster exists? Holidaymakers...

A former detective with the world-renowned Pinkerton agency, Nickell has gone undercover for his paranormal investigations. He has shaved his moustache, walked with a cane and done a number of things to fool his suspects, who know his usual persona all too well.

Nickell went undercover at Camp Chesterfield, dubbed the 'Coney Island of spiritualism', to show that a medium's pronouncements weren't the work of the divine but a magic trick. He called himself Jim Collins and limped with a cane around the Indiana site for a few days, telling anyone who would listen about his 'mother's death'.

Nickell has used disguises several times in his work as a paranormal investigator appearing undercover, for example, as a séance attendee (left) at the spiritualist village, Camp Chesterfield, in Indiana

He participated in a psychic reading at a church on the grounds where he was instructed to write down the names of loved ones who had died and a question. The medium read his message and told him his 'mother wants you to know she'll be there for you'.

'It was very moving, in this situation it was very, very moving,' said Nickell. 'I was nearly on the verge of tears until I remembered that at that time my mother was still alive and wasn't named Mrs Collins. And I felt so much better because I'd just pulled another trickster.'

In a field that's commonly divided into 'believers' and 'debunkers' – people whose minds have been made up prior to inquiry – Nickell has gained international

ADVERTISEMENT

▶ Cindy Crawford and Kaia Gerber look tense at LAX as they are seen for the first time since Rande's interaction with 'freaking out' Pete Davidson

▶ Steve Kazee calls himself a Jenna Dewan 'fan-account' as he shares sweet message to his pregnant girlfriend: 'I'm incredibly proud'

▶ Johnny Depp spends Christmas in Paris with ex Vanessa Paradis and their children as the actor squeezes in a visit to Le Lido after extending his trip

▶ Nicole Kidman shares sweet throwback snap from 2012 as she and Keith Urban celebrate youngest daughter for being a 'fair-minded investigator'.

Nickell's explanations for the paranormal are often quite mundane.

In the case of lake monsters, for instance, a few otters swimming in a line can create the illusion of one large creature, he said. Otters exist everywhere in the world except Australia, which could explain the variations on the monster, he added.

In the case of the Loch Ness monster, Nickell suggested it's a large otter based on its 'undulating locomotion, relative size and fast speed'. He was at Loch Ness in 2012 and didn't find the fabled creature.

Then there's Big Foot, the tall, hairy bipedal creature that's thought to stalk forests. Well, it's probably a black or brown bear standing on its hind legs, Nickell said. Not every Big Foot sighting can be explained away by bears, he admitted, but it's an example of how people's perceptions can be fooled.

As described in Nickell's book Tracking the Man-Beasts, he's searched for the North American Bigfoot, as well as its international counterparts, for years and has found no fossil evidence or specimen. Throughout his research he did, however, befriend costume maker Phillip Morris, who claimed he made the gorilla suit for the infamous 1967 Bigfoot film.

Nickell typically uses evidence collection bags, swabs, camera and a magnifier in an effort to eliminate bias from his work

Nickell has gone on numerous lake-monster expeditions, often for a television docu series. He's investigated Scotland's Loch Ness monster and is shown in this undated sonar-equipped boat on New York's Lake Champlain in search of the creature Cham of the lakes has he found convincing evidence for a monster

Fraudsters use similar tricks, whether they're faking Bigfoot or Jesus, Nickel

▶ during night out with actress Anna Osceola

▶ French Montana treats himself to a 'lil gift' of a \$1.5m Bugatti after recovering from medical scare
Delivered to his Las Vegas home

▶ Ashley Tisdale and husband Christopher French walk their pups as they enjoy the holiday weekend
Lost their beloved dog, Maui, over the summer

▶ Ryan Seacrest and new co-host Lucy Hale bundle up in black for Dick Clark's New Year's Rockin' Eve preview
They are already in sync when it comes to outfits

▶ Bella Hadid sets pulses racing as she goes BRALESS under an open denim shirt to flaunt her tanned physique for a racy holiday post

▶ Hate Star Wars: The Rise of Skywalker? It may have more to do with your unrealistic expectations than the movie, according to scientists

▶ Model Iskra Lawrence cradles her baby bump as she poses NUDE in a stunning pregnancy shoot ahead of welcoming her first child

▶ Arnold Schwarzenegger goes skiing with old pal Clint Eastwood as he tells fans: 'Name a more iconic duo. I'll wait'
Took to Instagram

▶ Princess Martha Louise of Norway's ex-husband Ari Behn is

TODAY'S
TOP VIDEOS

'I treat religious claims the same as any other,' he said. 'Early on in skepticism, a lot of skeptics would say, "We don't get into religion. Let's not get into that. That's a whole can of worms. Let's just stick to Bigfoot and ghosts and flying saucers and so forth".

'And I came along and said, "No, the Shroud of Turin, the weeping icons, the faith healing miracles – those are important to look at and they deserve to be criticized and examined in the same way that any other claim but you do it with respect."

The Shroud of Turin (above) is a linen cloth believed so seriously by some Christians to bear the image of Christ that Pope Francis has visited the icon at the Cathedral of St John the Baptist in Turin, Italy, where it's stored in a vault. Nickell has investigated the case since 1977 and believes it to be the work of a 13th or 14th century artist

The Shroud of Turin, for example, is a linen cloth believed so seriously many Christians as the burial cloth of Jesus that even Vatican historians vouch for its authenticity but Nickell claims it's no more than a medieval forgery. Tests have shown the 'bloodstains' on the cloth are paint and carbon dating has placed its manufacture at 1260 and 1390 AD, he said. To illustrate this claim, he created a Shroud of Bing Crosby using powdered pigments and a bas-relief sculpture.

Wanting to believe can cloud a person's judgement, said Nickell, especially when they're looking for a miracle.

In 1991, Nickell and members of the New York Area Skeptics group went to a small Greek Orthodox Church in Queens, New York, to examine the icon of St Irene, patron saint of the sick and of peace, when it supposedly began to cry. They found that the icon's glistening varnish and surface irregularities created a play of light that produced the appearance of weeping.

▶ Ozark's Julia Garner, 25, marries musician Mark Foster, 35, as the happy couple are seen passionately kissing during their first dance

▶ Bebe Rexha shows off bodacious body in mismatched floral thong bikini on family vacation in Bahamas
Recently teased her fans on Instagram

▶ Britain's hardest working royals!
Revealed: How many engagements Kate, Queen and co performed during 2019

▶ Steve Irwin's 'hot niece' Rebecca Lobie shows off her ample cleavage in a plunging white top as she enjoys a date night with husband Mick

Nickell also examines religious claims, such as the 1990 case of the 'weeping' St Irene icon at a small Greek Orthodox Church in Queens, New York (pictured). The icon attracted thousands of pilgrims over the few days it was reputed to be 'weeping'

In 1997, Nickell investigated another 'weeping' icon at a Toronto church at the request of an attorney for the Greek Orthodox Church of North America. There he took samples of the 'tears', which proved to be a non-drying oil, deliberately placed on the icon by someone

▶ Tammy Hembrow REUNITES with ex-boyfriend Jahkoy Palmer in Bali... after he wrote cringeworthy song begging her for forgiveness

▶ HRH hand-me-down! Royal fans spot Lady Louise Windsor, 16, borrowed mother Sophie Wessex's Stella McCartney coat for church at Sandringham

▶ Emily Ratajkowski bares cleavage in lacy white bra as she takes sultry selfie from bed
The 28-year-old supermodel kept her makeup minimal

▶ 'We're coming for you 2020!' Naomi Watts sticks her tongue out while wearing a red bikini as she prepares to welcome in the New Year

ADVERTISEMENT

▶ Princess Diana's niece Lady Kitty, 29, is dubbed Princess Charlotte's 'twin' in a throwback childhood snap as royal fans go wild over strong family resemblance

▶ Malika Haqq gets some love from Khloe Kardashian and Kylie Jenner for baby bump Insta
Appeared to have a new luxury car

▶ Vanessa Hudgens embraces the cold weather in zebra-print sweater as she explores 'magical' Switzerland

▶ Too hot to handle! Instagram star Tammy Hembrow goes

The Greek Orthodox Church later pronounced the 'weeping' icon, being held by Nickell in this 1997 photo, to be a hoax

His paranormal hypotheses have been proven right before. For decades, visitors to the Van Horn Mansion in the small community of Burt, New York, reported seeing a ghostly figure dressed in white. It turns out this 'ghost' was a mannequin in the window, he said.

'It's not my job to explain that there's no ghosts,' said Nickell. 'I don't feel like I have to wrestle someone to the ground and beat on them the scientific knowledge.'

Armed with a series of kits packed into plastic bins, Nickell typically uses evidence collection bags, swabs, camera and a magnifier in an effort to eliminate bias from his work.

▶ Girls band mate Emma Bunton and their husbands before enjoying a game of charades

▶ 'It takes a little longer to get ready but now I can be myself all day': A VERY candid Caitlyn Jenner talks about her transition and those Kardashian relatives

▶ Singer Lily Allen hits the slopes in Colorado as she takes her daughters Ethel, 7, and Marnie, 6, snowboarding

▶ Madonna, 61, shares snap of 'family water therapy' as she joins children and boytoy beau Ahlamalik Williams, 25, on a 'healing' getaway

▶ 'The feeling is mutual!': Fleabag fans excited as Obama includes the show - which featured him in a very sassy scene - in his favorite TV of 2019

ADVERTISEMENT

▶ Not an inch to pinch! Victoria's Secret model Erin Holland shows off her incredibly toned figure in a skimpy purple bikini at the beach

▶ Brian Austin Green is every bit the doting dad as he heads out to lunch with his three kids Was spotted out and about

▶ Izabel Goulart soaks up the sun in a tiny black thong bikini while on a romantic holiday in St. Barts with fiance Kevin Trapp

In search of monsters: The truth behind famous myths and legends, according to Joe Nickell

Vampires unearthed: Health epidemics caused scares

Epidemics were invariably behind vampire scares, Nickell says. A stricken person's lethargy, pale appearance, coughing of blood and contagiousness, although actually due to consumption, were attributed to vampires. Blood found at the mouth of a suspected vampire's corpse that had been exhausted was considered evidence of vampiric feeding, even though that's part of natural human decomposition process.

Getting ghosted: Pranks, sleep deprivation or even carbon monoxide poisoning can explain sightings

Nickell has never come across any evidence that would prove the existence of ghosts in his almost 50-year career as a paranormal investigator. Instead, he points toward scientifically explainable reasons for why people may think they see ghosts.

TODAY'S TOP VIDEOS

they've seen the paranormal. Ghosts are often the result of pranks, environmental phenomenon and physiological conditions like sleep paralysis and sleep deprivation, Nickell says. Ghostly sightings may also be brought on by drug use or carbon monoxide poisoning.

Testing the water: In search of the elusive Loch Ness monster

There's numerous reasons against the existence of lake monsters, Nickell says. One reason he gives is that dead animals usually float to the surface and a monster specimen has yet to be found. Another possible explanation he provides is that large reptiles need to breathe, which means they would need to surface frequently. Lake monsters may be an illusion caused by a group of otters swimming in a line, floating objects, singular large waves or plain ole hoaxes, he says.

Nessie? Claimed to be the first photograph of the Loch Ness monster, this was known as the 'surgeon's photograph because it was supposedly taken in 1934 by a London gynecologist called Robert Kenneth Wilson who refused to have his name associated with it. It was considered evidence of the monster for a number of years but since 1994 it has been widely agreed the photo was a hoax.

What the howl? Blame the French for werewolves

The werewolf may be the oldest myth in folklore and likely grew out of a misconception of medical conditions such as hypertrichosis, where exc hair grows all over the body. French sailors and settlers brought the wer myth to America, Nickell says. In France, an unidentified animal had wre horror on various villages. Similar animal attacks occurred in America ar without reason to think otherwise, the French blamed it on werewolves. out, some European 'werewolf' attacks were the work of murderers, Nic says.

▶ lingerie shots

▶ Real Housewives Of Orange County's Vicki Gunvalson says she's 'not homophobic' amid reunion confrontation with Braunwyn Windham-Burke

▶ Pussycat Doll Ashley Roberts shows off her incredible abs in skimpy bikinis as she soaks up the sun in Thailand with boyfriend Giovanni Pernice

▶ Chris Pratt's wife Katherine Schwarzenegger holds hands with actor's seven-year-old son Jack on outing in LA

▶ Wish you were here? Tammy Hembrow leaves little to the imagination as she strips down to a skimpy blue bikini on vacation in Bali

▶ Sean Penn, 59, and lookalike son Hopper Jack, 26, look a little tired on night out together in St. Barts
Pair hit the town together

ADVERTISEMENT

▶ Pierce Brosnan, 66, enjoys a bike ride along the beach in Malibu with wife Keely Shay Smith, 56, before striking a pose next to a classic car

▶ How the royals look good in EVERY photo: Kate has 'perfected her royal wave and walk', while Meghan 'never overly smiles' but 'connects with people'

▶ Demi Rose struggles to contain her assets in skimpy gold bikini as

The hairy truth about Bigfoot

The majority of Bigfoot evidence consists of eyewitness accounts. Yet, as psychologists and juries know such accounts can be inaccurate, Nickell says. While these anecdotes shouldn't be dismissed, he says, they can't replace physical evidence of Bigfoot. A Bigfoot carcass has never been found and there's no fossil record fitting the monster's description, he says. A plausible explanation for Bigfoot, Nickell says, is a brown or black bear standing on its hind legs.

This still from the infamous 1967 film by Roger Patterson appears to show a clear image of a female Bigfoot, later nicknamed Patty, striding along a riverbank. Skeptics, including Nickell, insist the creature is simply a person in an ape suit

Since 1995, he's received a small endowment for his work as a full-time paranormal investigator under the auspices of the Committee for Skeptical Inquiry. The organization, located on the outskirts of Buffalo, New York, promotes 'scientific inquiry, critical investigation, and the use of reason in examining controversial and extraordinary claims.' But Nickell is adamant that he's not the 'heartless debunker who dismisses paranormal believers as gullible fools.

'I'm confident that if I can explain a mystery then the debunking will take care of itself,' said Nickell. 'So, where the debunker might say, "Oh, those people were probably drinking. So, not a ghost," what I'm gonna do is say, "I went there. Those people were very sincere and they had actually had an experience, so no one should accuse them of anything nefarious.'

▶ rosacea while filming Netflix show Gypsy because she was constantly reapplying makeup

EXCLUSIVE Simon Cowell donates £190,000 of his own money to dog charity but is left red-faced when he suffers a wardrobe malfunction

▶ 'I'm a psycho': Kate Beckinsale hilariously reveals she bought a pillow in the shape of her daughter's BOYFRIEND

▶ She's not very subtle! Lindsay Lohan leaves ANOTHER thirsty comment on Liam Hemsworth's Instagram page

▶ Kim Kardashian flaunts cleavage in black off-the-shoulder number as she plugs sale for her cosmetic line
Took to Instagram

▶ Lauren Sanchez's ex Patrick Whitesell, 54, steps out with actress girlfriend Pia Miller, 36, in Sydney... days after going Instagram official

ADVERTISEMENT

▶ The Queen is battling to build a huge storage center for her artwork near Harry and Meghan's Frogmore Cottage after warning it could cause flooding

▶ Kobe Bryant and daughter Gianna sit courtside to watch Los Angeles Lakers game at Staples Center
Cheered on his old team

TODAY'S
TOP VIDEOS

Nickell said he's also interviewed numerous people who claim to have been abducted by aliens and found them to be decent, sane people. UFOs are real in the sense that there is really something unidentified flying in the sky that's been caught on camera, he said, it's just not being flown by extraterrestrials.

Nickell has conducted hands-on examinations of such 'miraculous' phenomena as statues exhibiting heartbeats, as shown here in this undated photo at a site of reported supernatural appearances by the Virgin Mary in Conyers, Georgia

▶ Harry Potter actor, 36, who played Ron Weasley's straight-laced brother Percy reveals he became a bar tender when the roles dried up

▶ Rita Ora and her sister Elena slip into matching white bikinis during festive family holiday in the Caribbean
Took to Instagram on Monday

▶ Hailee Steinfeld sends fans into a frenzy as she hints she's penned a 'diss track' about ex Niall Horan with cryptic 'Wrong Direction' post

▶ Macaulay Culkin and girlfriend Brenda Song show team spirit in blue and yellow as they support the Rams in their final game at the LA Memorial Coliseum

▶ 'I didn't expect them to come': Caitlyn Jenner reveals she called her kids to apologize after they were slammed for snubbing her UK TV show appearance

▶ Hilary Duff and Matthew Koma settle into newlywed life as they run errands with the kids after posting throwbacks from their winter wedding

ADVERTISEMENT

▶ Pia Miller, 36, flaunts her figure in tiny orange bikini at Sydney's Bondi Beach... days after going Instagram official with Lauren Sanchez's ex Patrick Whitesell, 54

▶ Catherine Zeta-Jones shares family portrait with Michael Douglas... after her children Dylan

For decades Nickell has studied reports of unidentified flying objects, or UFOs, and addressed the subject of alien visitations in several books. He's pictured here in 2005 getting 'abducted' by 'aliens' at Kelly, Kentucky, the site of a famous 1955 UFO/alien-attack

Nickell also studies crop circles, which he admitted are mostly created by hoaxers. He's pictured here on a 1994 investigation of an English crop circle near Stonehenge

▶ bikini before hitting the beach with baby Santiago in Mexico
She's been staying with her Beckham pals

▶ Royal photographer reveals his top three photos of 2019 - including a striking shot of Meghan Markle in South Africa

▶ Kate Hudson hits the ski slopes in Aspen with Danny Fujikawa as couple continue Christmas vacation
Let their hair down in snowy Colorado

▶ The Mandalorian Season 1 finale scores a rare 100% Fresh rating on Rotten Tomatoes
Has been just as big a hit with critics as it has been with fans

▶ Alessandra Ambrosio flaunts her figure in a black bikini while on family holiday in Brazil
The 38-year-old supermodel looked fit as ever

▶ Tana Mongeau is 'unhappy' about aspects of 'marriage' with Jake Paul: 'So many things keep hurting me further'
Opened up about her love life issues

▶ 'Let me guess? You're going to cut all the toxic people out of your life, go to the gym and focus on you in 2020?'
Shanina Shaik takes a swipe at New Year's 'resolutions'

ADVERTISEMENT

▶ Nick Young and fiancée Keonna Green step out for dinner in West Hollywood after Christmas proposal
The couple got engaged on Christmas Day

Case in point: Roswell. From the evidence, said Nickell, balloons burst near the New Mexican town in 1947. The 'Roswell incident' was propelled into history that year when an eager, young public information officer with the Roswell Army Air Base released an unauthorized press release. Other UFO crash stories followed, as did photographs of living and dead aliens.

Turns out not only can aliens not drive a spaceship – they can't draw, Nickell said.

Nickell's most high-profile case was the Nazca lines, a set of enormous drawings etched into the desert floor of Peru. The etchings, many taking the shape of animals, were relics of the country's 1,500-year-old Nazca civilization.

In 1982, Nickell helped create a full-size duplicate of the condor using only sticks and cords such as the Nazca may have employed for Skeptical Inquirer magazine. He found no evidence that extraterrestrials were involved in the creation of the original icon

Paranormal enthusiasts, convinced that the Nazca couldn't have produced the symbols with simple tools, theorized that the society had help from aliens. One popular conclusion was that the lines were runways for alien spaceships.

To Nickell, this argument seemed wild. So, he and a team of University of Kentucky students employed a West Liberty landfill to use as a sketchbook to set out to prove that the Nazca could have created the artwork alone.

On August 7, 1982, Nickell and his crew successfully copied the 440-foot Nazca drawing of a condor using twine and wooden stakes to map out the icon.

▶ anniversary

▶ Madonna, 61, and her toyboy beau Ahlamalik Williams, 25, have said I LOVE YOU and are already 'getting serious', reveals his father

▶ Prince Philip is feeling 'much better' Charles tells well-wishers on the way to church with Queen and other royals

▶ Zara and Mike Tindall 'would consider MOVING to Australia' after she retires from eventing - and are set to come Down Under with their children in 2020

▶ Real Housewives Of Atlanta: Kenya Moore cries while admitting being in 'real low place' with husband
The 48-year-old reality star got emotional

▶ Star Wars: The Rise of Skywalker repeats atop the box office for a second straight weekend with $72M... as Cats is poised to lose at least $71M

▶ That'll get the likes! Steve Irwin's 'hot niece' Rebecca Lobie flaunts her ample bust in a plunging black swimsuit for a candid selfie

▶ Rose McGowan slams claims that the #MeToo movement makes it 'hard for men to flirt with women' because they're afraid of crossing a line

ADVERTISEMENT

▶ Martin Lawrence, 54,

Perhaps Nickell's most famous case is the famed Nazca lines in Peru. He set out to prove that the ancient Nazca people could have produced the icons without the aid of space aliens by recreating this spider for National Geographic TV's Is It Real? series

Nickell's investigations, in many cases, do little to sway paranormal believers. Alien abductees still insist they were abducted. The Shroud of Turin remains hotly contested. People who commune with ghosts of a recently departed loved one don't want to be told that the episode was just a dream.

Paranormal believers aren't weighing the evidence, said Nickell. They're not using their brain but their heart, he added.

Although Nickell is a Humanist – 'an atheist with a heart' – the pull of belief in the paranormal is a sentiment he understands. His mother was a follower of the Disciples of Christ, and it's because of this that he advocates for a 'kindler, gentler scepticism'.

Based on nearly 50 years of probing, Nickell doubts he'll ever encounter anything supernatural. But the meaning of scepticism is to always question and stay open to different possibilities, he said.

'I don't know what the future holds; the psychics haven't been able to tell me,' said Nickell. 'But my hope is I fall dead in a haunted house or I'll stumble over a cliff looking for Bigfoot. In other words, I want to be active until the end.'

ADVERTISEMENT

Share or comment on this article: Joe Nickell is a real life Agent Scully who is a skeptic

Facebook Share | Twitter | Pinterest | Reddit | Messenger | Email | 269 shares

Taboola Feed

▶ Kevin Hart thanks his fans and encourages them to 'be better' ... after premiere of Netflix docuseries that recounts several scandals

▶ Rande Gerber spotted out in New York City... just days after an interaction with a 'freaking out' Pete Davidson in daughter Kaia's apartment

▶ Orlando Bloom gets into a playful screaming match with fiancée Katy Perry's relatives during a raucous game of Taboo

▶ Nina Agdal wows in bikini during trip to 'paradise' with beau Jack Brinkley-Cook and his mom Christie (and even serves as their photographer)

▶ Jennifer Lopez cuts a boss look in black Chanel belt as she and Alex Rodriguez shop for commercial real estate in LA

▶ Bindi Irwin 'grateful' to be home for New Year with her 'beautiful family' after celebrating Christmas with fiancé Chandler Powell in the US

▶ 'I bounced back quickly': Zac Efron opens up about his brush with death after contracting dangerous infection while filming in Papua New Guinea

▶ 'Utterly dismayed' John Cleese leads tributes to Monty Python musician and comedian Neil Innes after his death aged 75

ADVERTISEMENT

▶ California girl? Australian model Tammy Hembrow uses Americanisms like

Ik stond versteld toen ik de werkelijke kosten van een traplift...

Traplift | Zoek Advertenties

Sponsored Links

Zie de inloop douches die senioren zich eindelijk kunnen veroorloven

Inloop douches Search-advertenties

Dit zijn de goedkoopste energieleveranciers

Gas & Licht | Zoek Advertenties

Sponsored Links

Teresa Giudice hits Miami with a friend as daughters spend time with dad Joe... who promises their girls 'the best of me'

Just weeks ago it was announced that they would be going through with their divorce. And on Sunday, Teresa Giudice stepped out in Miami to have lunch while her daughters celebrated Christmas.

TV&Showbiz

▶ property developer boyfriend David Grievson as they enjoy a romantic trip to Barcelona

▶ Lucy Hale slithers in snakeskin patterned coat as she rehearses for Dick Clark's New Year's Rockin' Eve hosting gig alongside Ryan Seacrest

▶ James Packer cracks a rare smile as he jokes around with a female friend during a wintry holiday in Aspen with girlfriend Kylie Lim
Day out

▶ Georgina Rodríguez puts on a cheeky display in the pool after jet-ski ride on Dubai holiday with Cristiano Ronaldo... after denying they secretly married

▶ Kendall Jenner shows her spiritual side in 'Jesus Is King' sweatshirt on one year anniversary of Kanye West's Sunday Service

▶ Lizzo teases her cleavage in leopard Savage x Fenty robe... after clapping back at a body-shaming troll on Twitter
The Truth Hurts artist

▶ Inside Zac Efron's trip from hell: How the Hollywood star, 32, went from being welcomed by locals in Papua New Guinea to contracting a deadly infection

▶ Gigi Hadid sends fans wild as they speculate she is back together with Zayn Malik after model shares snap of herself cooking one of ex's mother's recipes

ADVERTISEMENT

TODAY'S TOP VIDEOS

Moeder bevalt van drieling. Als de dokter hun gezichtjes goe...

Bright Story

Sponsored Links

Padma Lakshmi SLAMS The New Yorker for confusing her with Priyanka Chopra: 'I know we all look alike'

The 49-year-old television personality took to her Instagram on Sunday to respond to the weekly publication's recent flub on social media.

TV&Showbiz

Herinner je hem? Haal diep adem voordat je ziet hoe hij e...

Healthy George

Spons

▶ Channing Tatum split

▶ Kanye West completes a year of Sunday Services in LA's Skid Row neighborhood ... where he defends T.I. and says he has 'vision' for homeless problem

▶ Kelly Rowland is casually stylish in white sweater and knit pants as she runs errands in Beverly Hills
The Destiny's Child singer

▶ Jessica Simpson hits the slopes with daughter Maxwell and brother-in-law Evan Ross during family trip to Aspen, Colorado
Hitting the slopes

▶ 'I nearly burst into tears': Fatboy Slim became emotional listening to his viral Right Here, Right Now remix that samples Greta Thunberg

▶ Kris Jenner is picture perfect wearing a vibrant green gown for dinner with Corey Gamble in St. Barts

▶ Disney star Devan Leos avoids jail in attempted murder case in LA over car incident with man in 7-Eleven parking lot

▶ Kylie Minogue enjoys a break on Rottneest Island as she glams up for a photo shoot... after starring in a $15m Tourism Australia campaign

▶ Eyes on the prize: Rafael Nadal jets into Perth for the inaugural ATP Cup... after a brief honeymoon with wife

TODAY'S TOP VIDEOS

Comments 41
Share what you think

Add your c

The comments below have not been moderated.

The views expressed in the contents above are those of our users and do not necessarily reflect the views of MailOnline.

We are no longer accepting comments on this article.

Something to smile about! Cricket star Nathan Lyon and glamorous girlfriend Emma McCarthy beam as they jet out of Melbourne after Australia smash New Zealand in the Boxing Day Test

Emma McCarthy is one of the newest WAGs on the cricket scene.

TV&Showbiz

Angela Rayner is preparing to endorse her flatmate Rebecca Long Bailey as next Labour leader and plans to put herself forward as deputy, sources...

News

Female 'fraudster', 39, predicted to be a bushfire victim to receive $300 donations from a church'

News

▶ furniture shopping with fiance Alex Rodriguez in Los Angeles

▶ Topless Chloe Green displays her yoga skills with a headstand on a paddleboard... as she shares cryptic caption on getaway without Jeremy Meeks

▶ Teddi Mellencamp enlists the help of her social media followers to choose a name for her unborn baby girl Options included Shay, Presley and Selena

▶ Tori Spelling looks like BFFs with her husband's ex Mary Jo Eustace in selfie... years after cheating scandal: 'I never thought this pic would happen'

▶ Star Wars: The Rise of Skywalker writers weren't trying to 'sideline' Rose Tico... after fans speak out about Kelly Marie Tran's beloved character

▶ Sir Tom Jones, 79, admits he eyes up women in their thirties but confesses 'it's mostly the grandmothers who fancy me'

▶ Mariah Carey braves the snow for a spot of shopping at Louis Vuitton in Aspen with her beau Bryan Tanaka

▶ 'Oh God!' You star Penn Badgley accidentally lets slip that psychotic stalker Joe Goldberg WILL return for a third season of hit Netflix show

▶ Mark Wahlberg's wife

TODAY'S TOP VIDEOS

These Twins Were Named "Most Beautiful In The World," Wai...

Appursee

Sponsored Links

Lindsey Graham golfs with Donald Trump AGAIN as senator who once called him 'a race-baiting, xenophobic, religious bigot' has played 14 rounds with the president -- far more than anyone else

DailyMail.com and other news outlets have documented 112 rounds the president has played in office. Graham has been there 1/8 of the time, playing with Trump every 8 weeks on average.

M News

15 European Cities with Highest Quality of Life

Far & Wide

Top 5 Beste Datingsites van Nederland Bekend!

Betrouwbaar Dating

▶ Jenna Dewan flaunts her burgeoning baby bump and gets flirty in animal print to promote her new show
The 39-year-old beauty rocked the bright outfit

▶ Rooney Mara teases potential involvement in film adaptation of The Silent Patient as she carries a copy of the popular book in Los Angeles

▶ Anthony Joshua shows off his sporting prowess as he goes jet skiing off the shores of Barbados during festive break... weeks after huge boxing victory

▶ Vanessa Hudgens is a candid cutie as she enjoys the holidays in Switzerland... after announcing 2020 clothing line and album on Instagram

▶ Tammy Hembrow showcases her sensational figure in a skimpy bikini top and matching pants as she enjoys an idyllic Bali getaway

▶ Victoria Beckham is praised by close pal Eva Longoria as they spend Christmas together... amid claims her fashion empire is battling huge debt

▶ James Packer and girlfriend Kylie Lim trudge through the snow in Aspen as they enjoy a quiet Christmas with friends
Mariah Carey's ex

▶ Suki Waterhouse is in high spirits as she steps out WITHOUT an engagement ring after Robert Pattinson proposal rumors

▶ Disney actor Stoney Westmoreland, 49, who is accused of trying to have sex with a 13-year-old boy, claims the judge in his case has a

TODAY'S TOP VIDEOS